

IRISH WHISKEY BONDING CO.

BRAND OVERVIEW

The Irish Whiskey Bonding Co. is new, yet we can trace our origins back two hundred years to a time of Irish whiskey excellence. In the 19th and early 20th centuries, the Irish whiskey industry was very different to what it is today. Distilleries made unbranded spirit, selling the ‘new make’ whiskey to publicans, grocers and other retailers.

These ‘Bonders’ – so called because they held their whiskey ‘in bond’ without paying duty – then aged, blended and bottled it to sell to their customers. There were Bonders in every town and city in Ireland, each with their own storage and blending methods, a practice that gave rise to regional variations of whiskey style and taste.

TASTING NOTES – IWSC 2022

Lovely fruit and citrus on the nose, full and fruity on the palate. A very drinkable blend with a delightful rich cereal sweetness reminiscent of oat and wheat. Well-integrated oak with gentle spice. An elegant blend, floral and feminine.
